Subject: Info on BC, SK, MB

I was just on the phone with my college in BC, they are reporting they have had a few events so far, but have good information that there will be much more robust protest numbers and events taking place there this weekend. They are seeing protest planning for the North, the interior, LMD and Island, as well as specific to the Legislature and some indications of a Marine Blockade in some ports. At this time they have no obstructions or issues on land ports of entry.

BC reports that there is currently a group of protestors at the MB Legislature, with information indication more, including food trucks, etc., to come and the outlook being that will be a long term event.

They are reporting SK is seeing information to indicate protests at their Legislature this weekend as well, though little info on that.

For your awareness.
